The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35

U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 37-39, 41, 43 and 44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) or (e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Tasaki (6,149,975) (see figs. 1-4) who discloses a reactant source assembly for generating a reactant gas flow comprising a first container containing reactant material to be vaporized. The first container is located in a second container, which is inherently or obviously gas-tight, having gas inlet and outlet pipes connected to the second container. The first container has an opening that opens into the gas space of the second container. The first container of Tasaki is metal and the plate 3, which can be considered to be a wall of the second container, is stainless steel. It also would have been obvious to use stainless steel for the outer walls of the second container, because Tasaki teaches that stainless steel is compatible with the reactants to be vaporized.

Claim 40 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tasaki (6,149,975) taken in view of Soininen (WO 96/17106), who teaches that containers for vaporizing reactants can be made of glass, and therefore it would have been obvious to use glass as the material of Tasaki's reactant container.

Claim 42 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tasaki (6,149,975) taken in view of Horsky (6,107,634) (Fig. 2 and col. 4, lines 5-16), Kikuchi (JP 54-096360) or Howson (page 272, col. 2, lines 7-11), each of whom teaches that a mechanical filter should be placed on the opening of a container for holding material to be vaporized in a sublimation vaporizer, to prevent unvaporized particles from exiting the container. In view of these teachings, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide the reactant material container of Tasaki with such a mechanical filter to prevent unvaporized material from exiting Tasaki's container.

Page 273 of the Howson article is not available and is not relied on in the above rejection.

Applicant's arguments have been considered but are not directed to the new grounds of rejection.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL.

Art Unit: 1763

See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
